

Natalie Stylianou

Director at ADP Architecture

Natalie Stylianou is an Architect with over 12 years of experience in the field and currently the Director of ADP's Cyprus studio. She spent five years with ADP in London, refining her skills and contributing to high-profile projects before relocating to Cyprus in 2018 to establish and lead ADP's European branch. Since then, the Cyprus studio has become a vital hub, fostering strong connections with UK studios and bridging the gap between the two markets.

Natalie's role involves exploring legislative frameworks, design opportunities, and sharing knowledge and best practices between the UK and EU. As one of ADP's directors, she oversees business development for the Cyprus studio, focusing on advancing ADP's reputation and expertise in the region.

With particular experience in education and healthcare sector projects and masterplanning, Natalie is passionate about creating spaces that inspire learning and community engagement. She is also a dedicated advocate for sustainability in architecture. As a sustainability champion in Cyprus, Natalie actively works to influence clients and policy makers towards adopting sustainable practices, ensuring a more sustainable, inclusive, and engaging future for the construction industry.

A proud member of RIBA, ARB, and Cyprus' ETEK, Natalie is committed to promoting ADP's ethos and expertise throughout Cyprus and the EU, further solidifying the firm's presence in Europe.

Join Natalie as she shares her journey, insights on cross-market collaboration, and her vision for a sustainable architectural future.